Thomas Group Brings Strategic Planning Expertise to Patient-Centered Primary Care Collaborative (PCPCC) Executive Committee

IRVING, TEXAS – June 11, 2009 – Thomas Group, Inc. (NasdaqGM: TGIS), a global operations management consulting firm, announced today that it has been selected by the Patient-Centered Primary Care Collaborative (PCPCC) to lead the strategic planning process for the coalition whose aim is to change the face of healthcare in America through its support of the patient-centered medical home (PCMH) model.

“We are excited about the Thomas Group’s participation with PCPCC. They have an impressive track record of creating actionable strategic plans and implementing performance improvements for its clients,” said Edwina Rogers, executive director of PCPCC. “We believe their expertise will bring us significant value and we have asked them to join our executive committee to build a long-term partnership as we continue to expand in these uncharted waters.”

PCPCC is a coalition of more than 500 organizations, including employers, consumers, patients, physicians and payers who have joined together to urge adoption of continuous, uninterrupted care that is managed and coordinated by a primary care provider as the new standard of care, called the PCMH model.

“We are very encouraged by the increasingly broad membership of the PCPCC, including physician and other provider organizations along with payers, pharmaceutical, healthcare companies, and patient advocacy organizations,” says Eric Labe, Thomas Group Practice Leader, Healthcare. “There are many entities looking for a path to follow and PCPCC clearly has the vision and leadership to help reshape America’s healthcare system. We look forward to participating with PCPCC leaders and members to help make the organization as effective as possible in accomplishing its critical mission.”
