

Healthcare and Life Sciences

Thomas Group's healthcare and life sciences industry practice works with clients to ensure that patient needs are at the center of all that our clients do. With escalating costs, declining reimbursements, competitive pricing pressures, and complex payer blends, healthcare providers must maintain a portfolio of innovative products and services, supported by best practices to sustain revenue and grow market share. The prospect of universal healthcare alternatives will necessitate even more innovation and challenges for all healthcare players.

Markets We Serve

Our healthcare and life sciences consulting and program management solutions focus on providing a unified, highly scalable platform for designing, orchestrating, monitoring, and optimizing an organization's business processes. We help organizations connect and implement a fully integrated platform that includes: business processes, tools, and performance metrics to support its goals and achieve sustainability. We use our proprietary methodology Process Value Management™ and industry standard tools (e.g. Lean, Six Sigma, Theory of Constraints, etc.) to improve operations by addressing cultural issues and organizational alignment to improve operational performance in cycle time, productivity, and quality, create service delivery capacity, and improve delivery. The result is increased throughput and reduced costs and waste resulting in enhanced profitability and growth. Our integrated platform approach:

- Eliminates barriers to achieve optimum enterprise performance
- Aligns people and processes more closely with the strategy
- Implements an end-to-end, integrated performance view
- Enables transparency across the enterprise
- Eliminates non-value added activities
- Enhances decision-making processes

- Generates real-time, visible, and accurate results
- Speeds Time-to-Market and new product innovations
- Supports enterprise and local business models

Thomas Group's healthcare practice is a leader in creating and implementing personalized operational performance strategies that drive sustained organization transformation for all segments of healthcare.

How Can Thomas Group Help You

By aligning performance improvement using Process Value Management, we empower clients with the right business solutions for competitive advantage. Our work focuses on critical issues at the intersection of strategy and implementation:

- Develop and expand strategic enterprise architectures
- Understand client specific critical cost drivers in healthcare and what management can do to manage them efficiently
- Develop innovative solutions to healthcare process challenges
- Reduce employer healthcare costs
- Build collaborative bridges between organizational silos, within and between provider and employer enterprises
- Energize the cultural change that enables radical performance improvement

Thomas Group is an operations management consulting firm focused on helping clients in the healthcare and life sciences industry to improve financial performance, enhance competitive position, and achieve cultural transformation to optimize overall performance.
